

WILLOW CROCÉ

CLASS OF 2017

When Willow was young she wanted to be doctor, artist, English teacher, hairdresser and more so choosing just one was impossible.

WHAT HAS SHE BEEN UP TO?

Graduating with an ATAR of 91.10 Willow began her Double Degree Bachelor of Medical Science and Bachelor of Arts (English Major and Visual Arts Practice Minor) at the ANU. She knew she wanted to pursue a career in medicine, but because she loves English Literature and Arts too, she wanted to gain the foundational knowledge she would need to eventually publish her own novels and hopefully find success with her own paintings one day.

WHERE IS SHE NOW?

This year Willow has begun her first year of medical school at Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore in Rome, Italy as an international student. She chose to complete her Doctor of Medicine in Italy so she could better learn Italian, reconnect with part of her family's culture and travel around Europe on University holidays. Università Cattolica is connected to Gemelli Hospital – the biggest hospital in Rome and one of the largest hospitals in Europe that also is known for treating the Pope. In her spare time, she is a private VCE tutor and ANU-employed tutor helping students with their studies in biology, arts, science, and humanities.

SOMETHING YOU MAY NOT KNOW ABOUT HER

In 2016, while Willow was in Year 11, she was a part of the Mount Waverley Secondary College Exchange Program and lived in Osaka Japan for 3 months. She attended high school there and travelled around Tokyo and Kyoto with her host family. She was also Sustainability Captain in Year 12 and participated in leadership activities.
